Petersbourg, Auguſt 31, O. S.

A Courier is arrived here with the News, that General Iſmoyloff, with the Ruſſian Troops under his Command near Grodno, had attacked and entirely routed Six or Seven Thouſand Poles, which were commanded the Day before the Battle by the Regimentary of Lithuania Potczie, who thought proper to leave the Command of his Army to the Cupbearer of Lithuania, not caring to hazard his own Perſon in the Action. About a Thouſand Poles were killed on the Spot, and General Iſmoyloff has taken all their Tents, Baggage, and their Train of Artillery of thirteen Pieces of Cannon.

Copenhagen, Sept. 18, N. S. M. Brackel, her Czariſh Majeſty's Miniſter, upon the Importunity of M. de la Noue, and the French Officers, has conſented to receive the Ruſſian Frigate from them here, and has committed the Care of it to one Creutz, a Captain in the Daniſh Service, who has, by his Excellency's Interceſſion, obtained Leave to conduct it to Petersbourg: For theſe two Days paſt this Frigate has born the Ruſſian Flag, and lies ready to purſue its Voyage with the firſt fair Wind. Count Frize, who had a Permiſſion to quit the Service upon the Rhine, is come hither by the King's Order, probably to give his Majeſty a full Account of the Condition of the Army there. Count Holſt, his half Brother, Son to the great Chancellor, ſucceeds him in his Regiment of Horſe, as M. Ampthor does in the Command of the Cavalry under M. Morner.

Hague, Oct. 1, N. S. Our Letters from the Upper Rhine of the 24th paſt adviſe, that the French Army, commanded by the Marſhal d'Aſfeld, was encamped in the Plain of Weil, between Kentzingen and Endingen, within two Leagues of Old Briſac; but it was not believed they deſigned to beſiege that Place. The Imperial Army, commanded by Prince Eugene, continued in the ſame Poſts, but 16 Battallions had been detached, and were on the March for Italy, under the Command of the Count de la Lippe. We have no Accounts from the Imperialiſts in Italy ſince the 17th paſt. Count Sinzendorff, who had reſided here for ſome Years in
